CONGRESSIONAL WASHINGTON, Feb. 7th & 8th.

'I'ha North Eastern and the North Western Boundaries, have been the subjects of discussion in the Akete and the House. In the former body, Mr. Linn, of Missouri, entered complaint against her Majesty's subjects for taking possession of the Oregon and Columbia rivers, and he had been informed on unquestionable authorpart of the Oregon Territory, for building Forts ity that Mr. Greely had left Fredericton and was and catablishing military posts, with other grievone assumptions of authority upon the Territory of the United States, defined and ceded by the | Banking be authorized to require the attendance Treaty of Ghent. In the House, Mr. Evans of of Juda Dana and H. C. Buzzell before them Maine made a speech upon the North Exetern-Boundary question. Mr. Evans speech was begun on Wednesday and concluded on Thurs That from and after the passage of this act one day. It is spoken of as a very able representation of the whole subject matter, full of research and of powerful enforcement of undeni-

Bill discussion was continued by Mr. Hubbard of New Hampshire. Mr. Tallmadge replied to irg after yoke, "staple and ring" amendment Mr. Hubbard, and in the course of his remarks adopted. silluded to that part of the President's Message. charging the People of New York with bribery hi the law election the correspondent of the Raltimore American thus reports his remarks

He said New York had 56 counties. All but

13 have banks: 5 of them were anti-administration, and 8 administration. In the 8 count es where there were no banks, the opposition cain Whig wain is nearly five thousand, and vet the President says that the banks brought about the result of the election. In the counties where there are banks the whig gain was in proportion not one half. Sin said Mr Tull madge, there may be an excuse for this declaration, when it is made by the organ of the gov erament there may be an excuse for it, when it comes as it does from the Loco Foco organis in the city of New Nork but when it comes from the President of the United States, I hear the charge with actonishment. Sir. I repel it with indignation. Lrepel it although it comes from the President himself. He should have known the prople of New York better, and he did know them better. I call upon-every representative from New York to bear witness to the fall sity of the charge. Come from what source it may, be it high or low, from he Executive or or from one of the least exalted, I shall repel it What a situation on we present to the world. The President of the United States holding forth to the world the declaration that the Ranks bribed the voters of his own State to votragainst his own measures. [From the N. Y. Journal of Commerce] MR. WEBSTER'S SPEECH, ON THE SUBTREASURY BILL. IN SENATE, Wednesday, Jan. 31.

"Let the Government take care that it cures a sound currency for its own-use, and letit leave all the rest to the States and to the

These ominous sentences, Mr. President have been ringing in my ears, ever since they were uttered yesterday, by the member from New York. Let the Government take care of itself, and let the people take care of themselves This is the whole principle and policy of the and on this great and all absorbing question of the currency.

Sir, this is an ill boding announcement. It has nothing of consolation, of solace, or of hope couragement, and deeper fe rs. Yet it is but repetition. Message, and the Bill of the last session of Which this bill is also full, and which has pervaded all the recommendations, and all the meastree of Government, since May. I am either groping in thick and palpable darkness myself. in the objects of the Constitution, and the duties of Congress under it, or else these principles of public policy, thus declared, are at war with our most positive and urgent obligations. The Hon, member made other observations indicative of the same general tone of political feeling. Among the dozen topics of commendation of the bill before us, a prominent one shower of imputations, as he expressed the idea which would always beat upon it, as it beats ency. Indeed! And why should the administration, now or ever, be sheltered from that other must be under some strange delusion. shower! Is not the currency a subject over which the power and duty of Government extends? Is not Government justly responsible for its condition? Is it not of necessity wholly and entire-ty, under the control and regulation of political power? -- Is it not a matter, in regard to which, the people cannot, by any possibility, protect themselves, any more than they can, by their own individual efforts, supersede the necessity of the exercise by Government, of any political gower? Sir, the Government is justly answerable for he disneters of the currency, saving always those accidents which at all times cannot be foreseen or provided against. It is at least answerable for its own neglect, if it shall be guilty of it, in not exercising all its constitutional authorty for the correction and restoration of the curency. Why does it, how can it, shrink from this responsibility? Why does it retreat, from its own duty? Why does it seek, not the lauand eager escape? Sir, it never can escape must abide, the peltings of this storm of imputation, so long as it jurns its back upon this mo mentous question, and seeks to shelter itself in the sales, and the vaults, the cells and the caverns, of the Sub-Treasury system. But of governments that ever existed, the present Administration has least excuse for withdrawing its care from the currency, or shrink-ng from its just responsibility in regard to it. Its predecessor, in whose footsteps it professes to tread, has interfered, fatally interfered, with that subject. That interference was, and has been the productive cause of our disasters. Did the Administration disclaim power over the currency in 1833, when it removed the Deposites? And what meant all its subsequent transactions, all its professions, and all its efforts, for capital as well as labor, are they, too, in a high that better currency which it promised, if in truth it did not hold itself responsible to the People of the United States, for a good currency? From the very first year of the late Administration to the fast, there was hardly a session, if there was a single session, in which this duty of Covernment was not acknowledged, promiclaims of merit asserted, for benefits already conferred. It professed to erect the great templc of its glory on improvements of the currency. And, Sir, the better currency, which has the Government, but a currency for the people. It was not for the uso of the revenue nierely, brought upon us by its own interference, Govermeent talks with all possible coolness, of the shower of imputations. It disclaims, it renounces, it abandons its duties, and then seeks an

I can hardly persuade myself, that we are all in our waking senses. It seems like a opening light of the morning usually dispels.

There is so little of apparent relation of means and the undoubted power of government. In to ends; the measure before us, as it appears to j me, has so little to promise, for the relief of ex- in the government, are to be better off than the isting evils; it is so alien, so outlandish, so abstracted, so remote from the causes which press down all the great public interests, that I really find it difficult to rigard as real, what is thus around me. Sir, some of us are strangely in in which, at a time of great which, was, to shelter the Administration from that error. The difference between-us is so wide, the views which we take of public affairs so opposite; our opinions, both of the causes of tief can come only from Congress, that Connow, when disusters should happen to the cur-the present evils, and their appropriate ramecales, so totally unlike, that one side or the Time, and the public judgment, I trust, will, sooner or later, disperse these mists, and men and measures will be seen in their true character. I think, indeed, that I see already, some lifting up of the tog.

The hoporable member from New York has said, that we have now, already existing, a mode of conducting the fiscal affairs of the country, substantially such as that will be, which this Bill will establish. We may judge, therefore, he says, of the future by the present. A Sub-Treasury system, in fact, he contends, is now is operation; and he hopes the country sees so much good in it, as to be willing to make it permanent and perpetual. The present system, he insists, must at least be admitted not to have obstructed or impeded the beneficial action of the immense resources of the country. Sir, this seems to me a most extraordinary declaration. The operation and energy of the resources of the country not obstructed? The business of the community not impeded? Why, air, this can only be true, upon the supposition t On motion of Mr. Goodksow, Ordered. That the Common sense of all men pronounces, that attributable to the policy of Government; that they all spring from some extraneous and indescribed and whereas, that opinion is erioneous, observed they all spring from some extraneous and indescribed and whereas, that opinion is erioneous, observed they all spring from some extraneous and indescribed and whereas, according to be, answerable for the regulation of the current pendent cause lithe honorable member means the true reading of the Constitution, the great cy of the country, that it ought to abide, and that the disasters which have fallen upon us duty of this government, and its exclusive duty arise from causes which Government cannot so far as currency is concerned, is to take care control, such as over trading or speculation, and ot starlf; and, whereas, if government can but that Government is answerable for nothing, I secure a sound currency for itself, the people can understand him, though I do not at all conour with him. But that the resources of the country are not, now, in a state of great depiession and singulation, is what I had supposed none would assert. Sir, what are the resources of the country? The first of all, doubtless, is labor. Does this meet no impediment? Does labor find itself rewarded, as heretotore by high prices, paid in good money? The whole mass of industry, employed in commerce and manufactures, does it meet with no obstruction, or hindrance, or discouragement? And commerce and manufactures, in the aggregate, embracing career of success? Is nothing of impediment with double keys, and to paintand penduce for or obstruction, found connected with their present condition? Again, Sir, among our American resources, from the very first origin of this government, It is a measure fit for times when there is the credit and confidence have held a high and security in law, no value in commerce, no active foremost rank. We owe more to credit, and to ses of high improvement put forth, or loud commercial confidence, than any nation which ever existed; and ten times more than any flation except England. Credit and confidence have been the life of our system, and powerfully productive causes of all our prosperity. They and successful policy, or any agreement or contains a second successful policy, or any agreement or contains a second successful policy. been so long promised, was not a currency for are essentially parts of a system, which has covered the sens with our commerce, replenished the Treasury paid off the national debt. exbut for the use of the whole commerce, trade cited and stimulated the manufacturing industhe final dispersion of the Navy Island maraud. and business of the nation. And this credit, and this conwhich shall shield itself from a thick falling fidence, are they now no way obstructed, or impeded? Are they now acting with their naual efficiency, and their usual success, on the concerns of sociaty?

The Hon: member refers to the Euchanges. No doubt, Sir, the rate of foreign Exchange he nothiscs; and surely there never was a government ing in it glarming. Nor would it have had, if our domestic concerns had been in a proper com dition. But that the internal exchanges are in refuge in a bold, cold and heartless denial of the a heathful condition, as the Hon. membes alleges, is what I can by no means admit. I look It falls back from its own undertakings, and upon the derangement of the internal exclinages, as the precise form in which existing evils most manifestly exhibit themselves. Why, Bir, look woice will not tench it. There can be no shelter at the rates between large cities, in the neigh-while these times last, into which government borhood of each other. For one, I confess I know not what is American in policy, in public interest, or in public feeling, it these measures be deemed American. The first general aspect or feature of the billy the character written broadly on its front, is this abandonment of all concern for the general currency of the country. This is enough for me. It secures my opposition to the bill in all stages. Sir, this bill ought to have had a preamble. It ought to have been introduced by a recital, setting forth, that whereas the currency of the country had become totally deranged; and whereas, it has heretofore been thought the bounden duty of this government to take proper may very well be left to such a correccy as the States, or the Benhe, or their own good forlane, or bud fortune, may give them; therefore, be it ensated, &c. &c. &c. The very first provision of the bill is in keeping with its general objects, and general character. It abandons all the sentiments of civilized mankind, on the subject of credit and confidence, and carries us back to the dark ages. The first that we hear, is of safes, and vaults, and cells, and cloisters. From an intellectual, it goes back to a physical age. From commerce and credit, it returns to hoarding and hiding; from confidence and trust, it retreats to boits and bars to locks touching hidden treasure. It is a law for the times of the feudal system or a law for the heads and governors of the piratcal states of Barbary. industry aniong mankind. Here it jealtogeiber cut of time and out of place. EGETABLE PULMONARY BAL-SAM The following recommendation is from Dr Jacob Myers

Extract of a letter from Dr. Jacob Muere " The Vegetable Culmonary Balsam has been. sold in this country for two years, and the medicine has gained an uncommon celebrity, for it scarcely in one instance failed of having the desired effect. I am by no means in favor of the many mostrams most of which are impositions upon a credulous public, but that which I know by experience to be effectual, I cannot help but give my approbation thereto. A counterfeit preparation has been offered iere by a travelling agent of Comstock, N. Y. and there is also another article vended here that is strongly suspected to be spurious

JACOR MYFRS M D. Midniton, Juniata co. Penn. May 3 1837 ... Many new and highly interesting certificates maybe examined on the bill of directions-[F] There are many counterescent preparations assuming wholiv or in part the name of the original and true V. P. Balsam.
